Research Summary

Carpet tiles, also known as modular carpet or carpet squares, are a type of flooring that consists of individual carpet pieces that can be installed and arranged in various patterns. Each carpet tile typically measures around 18 inches (45 cm) square, although sizes may vary. They are made from materials such as nylon, polyester, or a combination of fibers, and come in a wide range of colors, designs, and textures. Carpet tiles offer several advantages over traditional wall-to-wall carpeting, including easy installation, versatility, and flexibility. They are often used in commercial settings, such as offices, airports, and hospitality spaces, where high traffic, frequent reconfigurations, or individual tile replacement may be necessary. Carpet tiles are durable, as they can withstand heavy foot traffic and are resistant to staining and wear. They are also easier to maintain and clean compared to broadloom carpet, as individual tiles can be removed and replaced if damaged or stained. Additionally, carpet tiles can be installed without the need for adhesives, thanks to their self-adhesive or interlocking backing systems. This makes them a convenient option for temporary installations or areas where flexibility is required.

The major global manufacturers of Carpet Tiles include Interface, Shaw Contract, Milliken, Mohawk Group, Japan Carpet, Desso (Tarkett Company), Belysse, VOXFLOOR, Suminoe Textile, J+J Flooring Group, Anker, Mannington Mills, Tuntex Carpet, Forbo Tesser, Balsan, Ege Carpets, Burmatex, Beaulieu, Kolon Glotech, Tapibel, Paragon, etc. The global players competition landscape in this report is divided into three tiers.
