Research Summary

Cassava starch, also known as tapioca starch, is a fine white powder extracted from the roots of the cassava plant. Cassava is a tropical crop widely cultivated for its starchy tubers, which are rich in carbohydrates. To produce cassava starch, the roots are peeled, grated, and then processed to separate the starch from the fibrous components and water. The resulting milky liquid is then dehydrated and dried to obtain the starch powder. Cassava starch is valued for its versatile properties and wide range of applications. It is a common ingredient in the food industry, used as a thickening agent, stabilizer, or binder in various food products such as sauces, soups, desserts, and baked goods. Cassava starch is gluten-free, making it suitable for individuals with gluten intolerance or celiac disease. Beyond the food industry, cassava starch finds application in the manufacturing of adhesives, paper, textiles, pharmaceuticals, and other industrial sectors. It is highly regarded for its high viscosity, neutral taste, and good clarity in solutions, making it a preferred choice in many formulations. Cassava starch plays a significant role in both the culinary and industrial realms, contributing to the creation of a wide array of products across diverse industries.

The major global manufacturers of Cassava Starch include Nong Ken, Gao Yuan, ROI ET Group, CP Intertrade, Chol Charoen, Thai Wah, Thanawat Group, Bangkok Starch, Thai Flour, Chaiyaphum Plant Products, Banpong Tapioca, FOCOCEV, North Eastern Starch, Hung Duy, etc. The global players competition landscape in this report is divided into three tiers.
