Research Summary

Cement clinker is a granular substance, typically in the form of small nodules or pellets, produced by heating a mixture of limestone, clay, and other raw materials in a kiln at high temperatures. The clinkering process causes chemical reactions, transforming the raw materials into new compounds. Cement, on the other hand, is the final product obtained from cement clinker by finely grinding it with gypsum or other additives to control its setting time and properties. When mixed with water, cement undergoes a process called hydration, resulting in the formation of a paste that binds together aggregates like sand and gravel, creating concrete. Cement is a crucial construction material, used in various applications such as building foundations, roads, bridges, and infrastructure. Its binding properties, strength, and versatility make it an essential component in modern construction projects.

The major global manufacturers of Cement Clinker and Cement include Lafarge Surma Cement Ltd, Chhatak Cement Factory Ltd, HC Trading, Shun shing, SsangYong Cement, Shah Cement, Bashundhara Cement, Meghna Cement, Lafarge & Holcim,
