Research Summary

A ceramic decal, also known as a ceramic transfer or ceramic sticker, is a decorative element used to apply intricate designs, patterns, or images onto ceramic surfaces. It is a thin layer of printed artwork that is transferred onto the ceramic object through a heat and pressure process. Ceramic decals are created by printing the desired design onto a special transfer paper using ceramic inks, which contain pigments that can withstand high firing temperatures. The decal is then carefully applied to the ceramic surface and fired in a kiln, allowing the ceramic ink to fuse with the glaze or the ceramic itself, resulting in a permanent and durable decoration. Ceramic decals offer a wide range of possibilities for adding visual interest, branding, or personalization to ceramic products, including tableware, tiles, decorative items, and sanitaryware. They enable detailed and colorful designs that may be challenging or time-consuming to achieve through traditional ceramic painting techniques. Ceramic decals have become a popular and efficient method for applying intricate and customized decorations onto ceramic surfaces in both artisanal and industrial settings.

The major global manufacturers of Ceramic Decal include Stecol Ceramic Crafts, Tangshan Jiali, Handan Ceramic, Jiangsu Nanyang, Concord Ceramics, Leipold International, Hi-Coat, Tullis Russell, Design Point Decal, Tony Transfer, Deco Art, Bel Decal, Yimei, Bailey, Siak Transfers, Trinity Decals, etc. The global players competition landscape in this report is divided into three tiers.
