Research Summary

Coco-caprylate is a natural, plant-derived, and biodegradable emollient commonly used in the cosmetics and personal care industry. It is derived from coconut oil and caprylic acid, which are both natural sources. Coco-caprylate has a lightweight and non-greasy texture, making it an ideal ingredient for skincare products such as lotions, creams, and serums. It helps to improve the spreadability and absorption of these products, leaving the skin feeling smooth and moisturized without a heavy or sticky residue. Additionally, coco-caprylate can act as a solvent for other ingredients, enhancing the formulation's overall stability and performance. Its natural origin and eco-friendly properties make it a popular choice for brands focusing on sustainable and green beauty formulations. Furthermore, coco-caprylate is considered safe and well-tolerated, making it suitable for various skin types, including sensitive skin.
