Research Summary

A concrete sealer is a protective coating applied to concrete surfaces to enhance its durability and appearance while preventing damage from various environmental elements. It forms a protective barrier that helps to repel water, oil, chemicals, and stains, reducing the risk of surface deterioration and prolonging the life of the concrete. Concrete sealers can be either penetrating or film-forming. Penetrating sealers penetrate the pores of the concrete, chemically reacting with it to create a hydrophobic barrier without altering the appearance. On the other hand, film-forming sealers create a protective film on the surface, providing a glossy or matte finish and offering enhanced protection against wear and abrasion. Concrete sealers are commonly used on driveways, sidewalks, patios, garage floors, and other exterior and interior concrete surfaces to maintain their structural integrity and keep them looking well-maintained for years to come.

The major global manufacturers of Concrete Sealer include Curecrete Distribution(Ashford Formula and RetroPlate), Prosoco, Evonik, BASF, SealSource,
