Research Summary

Credit insurance, also known as trade credit insurance or accounts receivable insurance, is a type of insurance designed to protect businesses against the risk of non-payment or insolvency of their customers. When a business sells goods or services on credit, there is a risk that the customer may default on the payment, leading to financial losses for the selling company. Credit insurance provides coverage for such risks, ensuring that the insured company is compensated in the event of customer insolvency or delayed payment. This insurance typically covers both domestic and international trade transactions and can be customized to suit the specific needs of the business. Credit insurance allows companies to extend credit terms to customers with greater confidence, facilitating business growth and enabling companies to explore new markets and opportunities. It also provides a safety net during economic downturns, protecting businesses from potential losses and helping them maintain financial stability and continuity.

The major global suppliers of Credit Insurance include Euler Hermes, Sinasure,

Atradius, Coface, Zurich, Credendo Group, QBE Insurance, Cesce, etc. The global players competition landscape in this report is divided into three tiers. The first tier comprises global leading enterprises that command a substantial market share, hold a dominant industry position, possess strong competitiveness and influence, and generate significant revenue. The second tier includes companies with a notable market presence and reputation; these firms actively follow industry leaders in product, service, or technological innovation and maintain a moderate revenue scale. The third tier consists of smaller companies with limited market share and lower brand recognition, primarily focused on local markets and generating comparatively lower revenue.
