Research Summary

Death care, also known as the funeral industry or mortuary science, refers to the profession and businesses involved in the care and management of deceased individuals and the arrangements for their final disposition. It encompasses a wide range of services and practices, including funeral homes, crematories, cemeteries, embalming, funeral ceremonies, memorial services, and grief support. Death care professionals assist families in making funeral arrangements, handling the legal and administrative aspects of a death, preparing the deceased for burial or cremation, and providing emotional support during the grieving process. The industry is regulated by laws and regulations to ensure proper handling and respectful treatment of the deceased. Death care plays a vital role in providing dignified and culturally appropriate end-of-life services, allowing families to honor and remember their loved ones while navigating the challenging process of saying goodbye.

The major global suppliers of Death Care include Service Corporation International, Batesville, Chemed Corp, Matthews International Corporation, StoneMor Partners, Wilbert Funeral Services, Carriage Services, Fu Shou Yuan International Group, Lung
