Research Summary

Dental fluoride varnish treatment is a common preventive procedure used in dentistry to strengthen teeth and prevent tooth decay. In this treatment, a thin layer of fluoride varnish is applied to the surface of the teeth by a dental professional. The varnish adheres to the tooth enamel, releasing fluoride over time. This fluoride helps to remineralize the enamel, making it more resistant to acid attacks from bacteria and acids in the mouth. Dental fluoride varnish is usually applied with a small brush or applicator and dries quickly upon contact with saliva. It is a safe and painless procedure that can be done during a routine dental visit. Dental fluoride varnish treatment is particularly beneficial for individuals at higher risk of tooth decay, such as children, teenagers, individuals with dry mouth, or those with a history of cavities. It provides long-lasting protection and contributes to maintaining good oral health.
