Research Summary

A frame filter press is a type of industrial filtration equipment used for separating solids from liquids in various processes. It consists of a series of vertical frames or plates that are arranged in a parallel configuration. Each frame is typically equipped with a filter cloth or filter membrane. The process involves pumping a slurry or liquid-solid mixture into the frame filter press, and the pressure is applied to dewater or separate the solids from the liquid. The solid particles are retained by the filter media, forming a filter cake, while the clarified liquid, known as filtrate, is collected for further processing or disposal. Frame filter presses are employed in a wide range of industries, including wastewater treatment, chemical manufacturing, pharmaceuticals, and mining, for tasks such as sludge dewatering, clarification, and particle separation. They are known for their efficiency in handling high-solids content slurries and are adaptable to various applications due to their customizable plate sizes and configurations.

The major global manufacturers of Frame Filter Press include Jingjin, ANDRITZ, Aqseptence Group, Zhongda Bright Filter Press, Hengshui Haijiang, Eaton, FLSmidth,
