Research Summary

Golf rangefinders are electronic devices designed to measure the distance between the device and a target on the golf course, aiding golfers in making accurate club selections. These compact and portable devices use laser technology or GPS (Global Positioning System) to provide precise distance readings to various course features such as flags, hazards, or bunkers. Laser rangefinders operate by emitting a laser beam towards the target, measuring the time it takes for the beam to bounce back to calculate distance. GPS rangefinders rely on satellite data to determine distances based on pre-mapped course information. Many modern golf rangefinders offer additional features such as slope adjustment, allowing golfers to account for changes in elevation. Golfers use rangefinders to enhance their course management, improve shot accuracy, and optimize their overall performance during a round of golf.

The major global manufacturers of Golf Rangefinders include Nikon, Vista Outdoor(Bushnell), SkyHawke Technologies, Garmin, Voice Caddie, Leupold, TecTecTec, Fine Digital, GolfBuddy, Callaway, Precision Pro Golf, Inavi, Laserlink Golf,
