Research Summary

Hydrogenated Nitrile Butadiene Rubber (HNBR) is a synthetic rubber compound that results from the hydrogenation of Nitrile Butadiene Rubber (NBR). NBR is a popular elastomer known for its excellent oil and fuel resistance, but hydrogenation further enhances its properties. The hydrogenation process involves the saturation of the unsaturated double bonds in the polymer backbone by adding hydrogen atoms. This modification increases the heat resistance, chemical stability, and overall durability of the rubber, making it particularly well-suited for demanding applications. HNBR exhibits superior resistance to heat, oil, and harsh chemicals, making it a preferred material in the manufacturing of seals, gaskets, and other components used in automotive, oil and gas, and industrial applications where reliability and resilience are crucial. The hydrogenation of NBR results in HNBR's ability to withstand a broader range of operating conditions, making it a versatile choice in various engineering and sealing applications.

The major global manufacturers of Hydrogenated Nitrile Butadiene Rubber (HNBR) include Zeon, LANXESS, Zannan Scitech, Dawn Polymer, etc. The global players competition landscape in this report is divided into three tiers.
