Research Summary

Instant adhesive, commonly known as super glue or cyanoacrylate adhesive, is a fast-acting and strong-bonding adhesive used for bonding a wide range of materials, including metals, plastics, rubber, ceramics, and wood. Instant adhesives typically come in liquid or gel form and cure rapidly upon contact with moisture in the air or on the surfaces being bonded, forming a strong and durable bond within seconds to minutes. They are valued for their ease of use, versatility, and ability to bond materials quickly and securely without the need for clamps or additional curing time. Instant adhesives find applications in various industries, including automotive, electronics, woodworking, and medical devices, where rapid assembly, high strength, and reliability are essential. However, users should exercise caution when handling instant adhesives, as they can bond skin and other surfaces rapidly upon contact.
