Research Summary

K-12 tutoring refers to the provision of educational assistance and support for students in kindergarten through twelfth grade. Tutors, often educators or subject matter experts, work with students individually or in small groups to provide additional help with academic subjects, homework, and study skills. K-12 tutoring aims to address specific learning needs, reinforce classroom instruction, and enhance students' understanding of various subjects. Tutors may offer personalized guidance, answer questions, and provide additional exercises to help students grasp and apply concepts effectively. This form of academic support can take place in various settings, including schools, community centers, or online platforms, and it plays a vital role in helping students achieve academic success by tailoring instruction to their individual learning styles and needs.
