Research Summary

Online tutoring is an educational method that provides personalized instruction and support to students over the internet. It involves one-on-one or group sessions where a qualified tutor assists learners in various subjects and academic levels, addressing their specific needs and challenges. Online tutoring is facilitated through video conferencing, interactive whiteboards, chat, or email, allowing students to receive help with homework, test preparation, or academic enrichment from the comfort of their own homes. This approach offers the advantages of flexibility, accessibility, and the ability to connect with tutors worldwide, making it a valuable resource for students seeking additional academic assistance or looking to improve their understanding of various subjects. Online tutoring has seen significant growth, especially with the rise of remote learning and the need for personalized educational support.
