Research Summary

Plasterboard liner refers to a specialized facing material used in the construction industry to cover and enhance the surface of plasterboard, also known as drywall or gypsum board. This liner is typically a paper or fiberglass-based sheet that is applied to one or both sides of the gypsum core during the manufacturing process of plasterboard. The primary purpose of the plasterboard liner is to provide additional strength, durability, and a smooth surface finish to the drywall. The liner also contributes to the fire resistance and acoustic properties of the plasterboard, making it a versatile and widely used building material. The choice between paper and fiberglass liners depends on factors such as specific performance requirements and environmental considerations in construction projects.
