Research Summary

A raised floor system is a type of flooring construction that elevates the floor surface above the original building foundation, creating a space or void underneath. This system typically consists of modular panels supported by an underlying framework of pedestals or supports. The raised floor allows for the concealment of services such as electrical wiring, data cabling, and HVAC (heating, ventilation, and air conditioning) components beneath the floor, providing easy access for maintenance and reconfiguration. Raised floor systems are commonly used in commercial buildings, data centers, control rooms, and offices where the efficient management of utilities and adaptability to technological changes are crucial. The modular nature of the flooring panels enables flexibility in the layout and design of interior spaces while facilitating the organized routing of services for improved functionality and aesthetics.

The major global manufacturers of Raised Floor System include Changzhou Huatong Floor, Changzhou Huayi Anti-Static Raised Floor, Jiangsu East China Computer Room Group, JiaChen Holding Group Limited, Jiangsu Huilian Activity Flooring, Jiangsu
