Research Summary

Soderberg electrode paste is a crucial material used in the production of electric arc furnaces (EAFs) for the smelting of ferroalloys, silicon metal, and other metals and alloys. It is composed of a mixture of calcined petroleum coke, coal tar pitch, and other additives, which are blended and extruded into cylindrical or rectangular shapes. Soderberg electrode paste serves as the conductive electrode in the EAF, providing the necessary electrical conductivity and resistance to withstand high temperatures and mechanical stresses during the smelting process. As the electrode paste is consumed in the furnace, new paste is continuously fed into the electrode column from the top, allowing for uninterrupted operation. Soderberg electrode paste is essential for efficient and cost-effective metal smelting operations, enabling the production of high-quality alloys for various industrial applications.

The major global manufacturers of Soderberg Electrode Paste include Yangguang Carbon, Elkem, Rongxing Group, Energoprom Group, Tokai COBEX, Ukrgrafit, Rheinfelden Carbon, Graphite India, India Carbon, Redox, Eastern Electrodes & Coke,
