Stone paper, also known as mineral paper or rock paper, is a type of paper made primarily from calcium carbonate, a mineral found in abundance in limestone and marble quarries. The production of stone paper involves grinding down calcium carbonate into a fine powder, which is then combined with a small amount of non-toxic resin as a binder. The mixture is processed using water and heat, then rolled into thin sheets to create paper-like material. Stone paper is known for its smooth texture, durability, water-resistance, and tear-resistance. It is also environmentally friendly, as it does not require the use of trees, water, or harmful chemicals in its production process.
