Research Summary

Website builders are online platforms or software tools that enable individuals and businesses to create and customize websites without the need for coding or technical expertise. These platforms typically offer a user-friendly interface with drag-and-drop functionality, pre-designed templates, and customizable elements such as text, images, videos, and forms. Website builders allow users to choose from a variety of templates or themes that suit their needs and preferences, and then customize them to create a unique and professional-looking website. Users can add pages, menus, and navigation structures, as well as integrate features such as e-commerce functionality, contact forms, blogs, and social media buttons. Website builders also provide hosting services, domain registration, and technical support, making it easy for users to launch and maintain their websites. Overall, website builders empower individuals and businesses to create their online presence quickly and affordably, without the need for extensive technical knowledge or resources.

The major global suppliers of Website Builders include Wix, Web, Yahoo, GoDaddy,

Weebly, Yola, eHost, Jimdo, Squarespace, Homestead, Dudamobile, Onbile, Tappinn, Mofuse, Gomobi, Qfuse, Activemobi, Ibuilt, etc. The global players competition landscape in this report is divided into three tiers.
