Research Summary

A wood pallet is a flat structure made primarily of wood designed to support goods during storage, transportation, and handling using material handling equipment such as forklifts, pallet jacks, and conveyors. Wood pallets consist of deckboards (top and bottom horizontal pieces), stringers or blocks (vertical pieces supporting the deckboards), and fasteners such as nails or staples. They are widely used in logistics, shipping, warehousing, and supply chain operations across various industries to efficiently move and store goods in bulk quantities. Wood pallets come in different sizes, configurations, and load capacities to accommodate diverse cargo types and handling requirements. They offer advantages such as reusability, recyclability, strength, and cost-effectiveness, making them one of the most commonly used pallet types globally. However, there are also considerations for proper maintenance, inspection, and disposal of wood pallets to ensure safety, hygiene, and environmental sustainability in supply chain operations.

The major global manufacturers of Wood Pallet include CHEP, PalletOne, Kamps Pallets, Inka-paletten, Pooling Partners, Falkenhahn AG, PECO, John Rock, Millwood,
