Abstracts

The Global market for Neurovascular Intervention is projected to reach nearly US$4 Billion by the end of 2021 growing at a CAGR of around XX% from 2016 to 2021.

Market growth can be attributed to factors such as rising prevalence of cerebrovascular disease and its associated risk factors, rise in the number of aging population, increasing knowledge of the symptoms of aneurysms and related diseases among patients, next generation of device platforms enters the market, long-term clinical data become available, appropriate treatment guidelines and reimbursement rates are established. Rapid advances in the field of neurovascular interventions and development of minimally invasive techniques have greatly expanded the market. High cost of treatment, unmet needs, scarcity of skilled neurosurgeons is restraining the growth of neurovascular interventional market.

United States is seen as the dominant player in the neurovascular intervention market. Emerging economies of India, China and Japan in the Asia-Pacific region and Latin American countries such as Brazil is slated to witness the highest growth in the forecasted period. The growth of the Asia-Pacific market is driven by improving healthcare facilities, gross domestic product (GDP) and increasing government investment.

On the basis of device, Coil represented the largest single category of products and accounted for XX% share in 2015. However, growth rate has slowed down in the segment which is being challenged by the emerging Carotid Stent, Microwire/Catheter and Clot Removal device. These three major devices grabbed the market share of XX% in 2015. It is expected that Coil will lead the neurovascular intervention market with XX% market share by the end of 2021.

Further, prudent analysis has been done on the competitor's part, where four major players grab XX% of the global market by revenue. Stryker, Medtronic, Terumo, and DePuy Synthes are the key influencers with their products in the Neurovascular Intervention market. New releases, merger & acquisitions, collaborations and extending distribution networks are few important factors for their dominance.
