Abstracts

The Swiss population is ageing; 18% of the overall population was aged 65 and above in 2016. The risk of incontinence increases with age. According to trade press, about half million people in Switzerland suffer from incontinence. However, only a quarter of the sufferers go to the doctors whilst incontinence remains a taboo amongst many Swiss people. Instead, most of the incontinent Swiss consumers look for relevant adult incontinence products themselves without a doctor's prescription.
