Abstracts

Similar to other industries, Agriculture in India has experienced COVID-19 induced disruptions, leading to declining industry's revenues during the year. The national lockdown, put in force in March 2020, has had a significant impact on Indian farming, creating shortages of labour and equipment. Small-holder Indian farmers, which account for nearly half of country's crop and cereal production, often rely on migrant workers to assist during harvest, while small farms also are likely to rent the e...
