Abstracts

Air care did not escape the spike in retail current unit prices in 2022 and 2023 due to high inflationary pressure. As in other home care categories, this brought higher inputs costs (energy, materials, labour, shipping, etc) and resulted in manufacturers and retailers increasing prices. Heightened price-sensitivity lowered purchases of home care items deemed 'discretionary', such as air care products. This saw all categories except candle air fresheners (marginal increase following a decline in...
