Abstracts

Airlines is seeing strong growth in 2023 both in terms of the number of passengers but also in terms of value sales. New routes, more connections and a stronger presence in Italy is all fuelling the dynamic growth being recorded by airlines, with passenger numbers expected to see a full return to pre-pandemic levels by the end of 2023. However, despite this positive trend there is the risk of prices increasing beyond the reach of some consumers which could undermine the performance of airlines.
