Abstracts

Retail volume sales of analgesics rebounded in 2023, following a two-year period of decline. While the COVID-19 pandemic boosted demand for acetaminophen (paracetamol), which was the only analgesic recommended by the government to alleviate the symptoms of the virus, other analgesics, such as aspirin and ibuprofen, saw a contraction in volume terms. With the worst of the pandemic behind them, consumers returned to their usual systemic analgesics, mainly aspirin and ibuprofen, in 2023.
