Abstracts

Prolonged COVID-19 caseloads and associated lockdowns continued to be seen in China in 2022. Fears about the pandemic have had a negative effect on birth rates in the country, as strained medical resources grew more concerning. The declining birth rate has seen milk formula slip into decline in unit volume sales terms since 2021 after a prolonged period of growth. This meant that packaging unit volume sales of the key pack types in the category, such as metal tins or folding cartons, were in dec...
