Abstracts

The most important factor influencing butter and margarine in 2017 was the changing perception of fat, which has traditionally been seen as the main culprit causing overweight and coronary heart diseases. In the first half of the review period, a new diet originally from Sweden called LCHF (low carb high fat) became popular in Denmark. This concept proposes a diet rich in fat and proteins from meat, fish and dairy products, and low in carbohydrates such as pasta and rice. Many consumers were ini...
