Abstracts

Charge cards are increasingly viewed as a niche product in Sweden, accounting for just 1% of all transactions in 2023, and therefore recorded further decline in the year. In a development which started before the COVID-19 crisis, fewer and fewer people are attracted to personal charge cards, and there has been a constant decline in the number of cards in circulation in the country. Diners Club left Sweden in 2017, while its only main competitor, American Express, switched from charge cards to cr...
