Abstracts

After the growth spike seen in the Eastern European cheese market in 2020, as a result of more home cooking due to the Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, the 2021 sales increase slowed to 2% in real value terms, with a 3% CAGR expected in the overall forecast period. Packaged hard cheese and soft cheese will make up the bulk of new sales over 2021-2026, while growth of HW cheese (eg reduced fat, free from lactose, organic) will continue to be more dynamic than non-HW cheese.

Euromonitor International's Cheese in Eastern Europe global briefing provides a comprehensive overview of the Dairy Products and Alternatives market, providing insight on sales and market potential, retail distribution and company and brand shares. Analysis identifies emerging geographies alongside growth opportunities in the most developed, highest value countries. It also offers strategic analysis of the key trends shaping the industry and consumer demand, such as health and wellness, sustainability, the evolution of eating occasions, in addition to ongoing considerations of convenience and value-for-money in the post-pandemic world. Insight into how these trends are shaping demand informs forecasts to 2025, clearly indicating how the market is expected to change.
