Abstracts

Retail volume sales of consumer electronics in China posted a decline in 2018, with category saturation occurring within computers and peripherals as well as within mobile phones; however, the overall decline was at a slower pace in 2018 compared to that in 2017, with rising demand for convenience and smart devices. Emerging categories such as wireless speakers, activity watch (both digital and analogue) and smart wearables posted double-digit volume growth in 2018. Manufacturers present within...
