Abstracts

The World Health Organisation declared the end of the COVID-19 health crisis in 2023 with this having an overall negative impact on sales of consumer health in retail volume terms. For example, demand for products with a strong focus on immune health such as vitamins and echinacea has seen a significant slump. Furthermore, there has also been a drop in demand for products that treat the symptoms of COVID-19, including some analgesics and cough and cold remedies, including pharyngeal preparations...
