Abstracts

2016 marks a second year-on-year decline in revenues for Crown Holdings. Yet improved profitability and further repercussions from investments made in the last two years should enable the group to reverse the trend in 2017. While some of Crown's key categories stagnated in 2016 such as carbonates and shelf stable fruit and vegetables, the groups' beverage can activities should expand in beer in Latin America and Asia while metal food cans have further potential in ambient meat and seafood.
