Abstracts

Swiss cheese has been in a state of flux since 2007 when Switzerland, as a member of the WTO, commenced the liberalisation of trade between itself and the EU. This resulted in the opening of borders which had its effects on producers and consumers alike and the Swiss cheese industry had to respond to the competition from its EU neighbours such as France and Holland. This was principally achieved by renewing the focus on top quality Swiss products and also by significantly increasing exports...
