Abstracts

Dairy packaging units saw a second year of decline in 2022, in a normalisation trend after an exceptional year during the first year of the pandemic, although volumes remained above the pre-pandemic level. Drinking milk products packaging volumes saw an above-average decline in Switzerland in 2022, due to a shift in consumer preference towards alternative milk products, such as plant-based milk, which has gained popularity amongst individuals seeking dairy-free options for health, environmental,...
