Abstracts

The incidence of head lice is rising back to normal levels in 2023 as children circulate freely in schools and at social gatherings, and kids play close together. With retail volume sales back to pre-pandemic levels in 2022, demand for antiparasitics/lice (head and body) treatments is normalising in 2023. Single-digit retail volume growth is expected in 2023, compared to the double-digit current value growth buoyed by inflation.
