Abstracts

Since 2022, South Africa has been suffering from rolling electricity blackouts. The scheduled blackouts can often occur in some areas around two to three times a day. Moreover, these blackouts often occur during mealtimes. This has created a strong dependency on fast food services in South Africa. During the review period, it was perceived that more people were relying on key fast food delivery services such as Uber Eats and Mr Delivery to feed their families. Even though the cost associated wit...
