Abstracts

Unique homegrown on-demand delivery concepts emerging in the Middle East are disrupting the traditional grocery retail structure, which has led to increased investment interest by local players in the segment. As delivery platforms aim to have a dedicated consumer base, reward-led subscription models are expected to be at the core of most platforms. Further, food disruptors are expected to evolve into blended concepts as technology would integrate online platforms and offline stores.

Euromonitor International's Digital Disruption: The Rise of Food Delivery in the Middle East global briefing offers an insight into to the size and shape of the Packaged Food market, highlights buzz topics, emerging geographies, categories and trends and identifies the leading companies and brands. It also offers strategic analysis on driving packaged food industry trends like health and wellness, premiumisation, convenience and value-for-money and how those trends influence factors like new product developments, packaging innovations, retail distribution and retail pricing both historically and into the future.

Data coverage: market sizes (historic and forecasts), company shares, brand shares and distribution data.
