Abstracts

Whilst consumers were keen to purchase new furnishings during 2010, they remained cautious about larger-scale investments such as major renovations and home improvement projects, because the consequences of the economic crisis still made it difficult to get a loan. Instead, there was a preference for spending smaller sums to take care of their homes and buy furniture. This led to negative current value growth of 1% for DIY, home improvement and garden centres, to reach sales of €8.2 billion in...
