Abstracts

Over 2013-2018 drinking milk products in Eastern Europe saw positive value growth, yet development was restrained by the complicated economic and political situation in Russia and Ukraine, as well as imbalance caused by the abolition of milk quotas in the EU. Milk alternatives appear to have great potential in the region, as cows' milk stagnates. Over the forecast period the category is expected to see moderate value growth, constrained by the maturity of the cows' milk category.

Euromonitor International's Drinking Milk Products in Eastern Europe global briefing offers an insight into to the size and shape of the Packaged Food market, highlights buzz topics, emerging geographies, categories and trends and identifies the leading companies and brands. It also offers strategic analysis on driving packaged food industry trends like health and wellness, premiumisation, convenience and value-for-money and how those trends influence factors like new product developments, packaging innovations, retail distribution and retail pricing both historically and into the future.
