Abstracts

E-commerce was already growing strongly in the Philippines over the review period, but the advent of the pandemic in the country accelerated its rise. Over nine tenths of Filipino internet users searched for goods and services to purchase during the first lockdown period in 2020 and of all those who searched, over three fourths of consumers completed their transactions online. This was largely thanks to the country's lockdown restrictions that forced non-essential store-based retailers to halt o...
