Abstracts

The strong performance of the Australian crude oil and natural gas extraction sector in 2018 was driven by favourable selling prices and strengthening production volumes. According to official statistics, 10% year-on-year volume growth was recorded in crude oil and condensate production, and 15% growth in natural gas extraction, with the latter making up the majority of the sector's sales. In 2018, production volumes increased, owing to greater capacity than in the previous year, with the main a...
