Abstracts

Tourist visitor levels in Poland recovered in 2023, despite global macroeconomic pressures such as high inflation and the rapid escalation of living costs. This was an improvement on previous years when the pandemic prevented people from travelling. Since the pandemic, consumers have been keen to resume normal activity and enjoy real-life experiences, with many choosing to live life to the full and “do” as much as they can to enjoy themselves. This renewed demand means that Poland is seeing incr...
