Abstracts

Indonesia's fishery sector (including both fishing and fish processing) showed significant turnover growth for yet another year in 2018. According to figures from the Maritime Affairs and Fisheries Ministry (KKP), the total fish capture increased for the third consecutive year, and stood at 7.2 million tonnes of fish, which represented a 5% year-on-year increase. The upward export trend recorded by fishery products, supportive government policies, and foreign investment into fish shipment and st...
