Abstracts

In 2020, the Indian forestry, wood and paper industry entered a recession, after posting two consecutive years of growth. The COVID-19 pandemic was the primary downwards driver during the year. The pandemic forced the country's government to adopt strict lockdowns, which weakened construction and printing. The construction industry was particularly damaged, as projects stalled, due to social distancing measures, rising unemployment and weakening business sentiment. In 2020, housing completions i...
