Abstracts

Sales at full-service restaurants (FSR) went into steep decline in 2020, negatively impacted by measures taken to contain the spread of Coronavirus (COVID-19). Among these restrictions were shutdowns of foodservice outlets or such establishments only being allowed to open for home delivery or takeaway, with such services generally better developed at and suited to channels like limited-service restaurants (LSR). A return to positive growth rates is expected post-pandemic from 2021.
