Abstracts

The report provides a global overview of production, consumption and prices of rice. After a relatively stable 2021, the rice market is registering uncertainty in 2022. China and India remained the key producers of the commodity, however, extreme weather in 2022 as well as export restrictions in India are causing turbulence and shifts in global markets. Meanwhile, demand is growing for affordable food staples such as rice, especially among more vulnerable consumer groups.

Strategy Briefings offer unique insight into emerging trends world-wide. Aimed squarely at strategists and planners, they draw on Euromonitor International's vast information resources to give top line insight across markets and within consumer segments.
