Abstracts

In 2019, China's government continued to see an increase in revenue, but at a slightly slower rate. Personal and business tax cuts, introduced in 2018, which were intended to spur the slowing economy, reduced public tax revenue. The tax reduction came as part of the government's long-term plan to create a more business-friendly environment. Steady growth in 2019 was largely attributed to an increase in non-tax revenue, such as profits from state-owned enterprises and public assets sell-offs.
