Abstracts

During 2013, health and wellness tourism in Switzerland continued to benefit from two very important factors. First, the growing number of elderly citizens in Switzerland expanded the consumer base for health and wellness tourism towards the end of the review period, promoting demand for spas. According to Euromonitor International data, the number of citizens aged over 65 in Switzerland increased by 10% over the course of the review period. People within this age group are essentially the...
